Stepping Twice Into the River

Following Dakota Waters

Robert King

“King introduces a year-long exploration of nowhere—that is, North Dakota—and deftly leads us from reflection on the past of the entire Great Plains to reflections on the future of the area. Nowhere is also Everywhere; this writer’s thoughts subtly encompass the history of decline and growth in the plains, and their relevance to the future—and this is the main topic of discussion everywhere in the West at this time.”

—Linda Hasselstrom, author of Between Grass and Sky

In STEPPING TWICE INTO THE RIVER, Robert King recounts his exploration of the “almost unnoticeable” along North Dakota’s Sheyenne River, from its headwaters to river’s end. With each experience along the way—tracing a military campaign, canoeing the river, visiting a ghost town, and even trying to sleep in an ancient Cheyenne village—King delves deeper into the river’s culture, bringing to light different aspects of the plains. In the hands of this gifted thinker and writer, local facts yield universal metaphor.

An able guide, King illuminates the ordinary from the perspectives of history, science, and literature. Blending travel narrative and poetic reflection, STEPPING TWICE INTO THE RIVER takes readers on a journey through time, revealing both stability and change and offering prairie wisdom. Readers will find in Robert King an affable and delightful guide, a painter of a vivid portrait of human endeavor on the northern plains.

Robert King’s poems, short fiction, and essays have appeared in numerous journals and magazines, including The Missouri Review, South Dakota Review, and Weber Studies. He has published five chapbooks and is the winner of the National Writer’s Union Prize for Poetry in 2000. He lives in Greeley, Colorado.
